

MOLINE

UNIVERSAL TRACTOR

Model D

More Speed---More Power---More Work

The last two years have fully demonstrated the correctness of the Moline Universal principle of construction and thousands of Moline tractors are now giving the greatest satisfaction to farmers in all parts of the world and helping to ease the plowing shortage of both men and horses.

In line with the Moline policy of giving our customers the best machinery possible, and stimulated by the war emergency we have developed a still better Moline Universal Tractor in the Model D. It is the perfected tractor of the day, with more speed, more power and more work.

Mechanically the Model D is all that could be desired. The four-cylinder engine of a perfect overhead valve type develops maximum power and the tractor is immediately cooled at 7-15 h. p. This gives ample power for pulling two bottoms under any usual conditions and plenty of power for best work. The speed and construction of the Model D are such that pulling a two-plow team, it will move as much as a day as the ordinary tractors together showing 2-4 miles an hour.

An electric governor enables the engine to be kept at any fixed speed from one-half to three and one-half miles per hour by simply turning a dial. This electric governor is the only device that will control an engine properly at all speeds. An electric self-starter relieves the operator of cranking the hand. Electric lights enable him to do perfect work at night. Every moving part of the Model D tractor is carefully greased.

A differential lock, which is mounted in the drive from the rear of the implement, locks both drive wheels together as a single unit and thus enables either wheel to pull the entire load when in soft ground or when one wheel might have a tendency to slip.

The Moline Universal Model D Tractor represents the growing advancement of the best tractor, mechanical, electrical and agricultural engineers in the country.

The improvements in the Model D tractor have all been adopted after the most thorough tests in actual field use—because they increase the efficiency of the tractor in the hands of the user. It solves the farm help problem.

The Mother on the Sidewalk.
By Edgar A. Gunst
The mother on the sidewalk as the troops are marching by is the mother of old Glory that is waiting to see the day.
Men have fought to keep it splendid, men have died to keep it bright, but the flag was born of woman and her sufferings lay not deep.
The flag's sacrifice has made it, and since more we ought to say
For the brave and loyal mother of the day that gives away.

There are days of grief before her, there are hours that she will weep, there are nights of restless waiting when her face will be sadly deep.
She has heard her country calling and has come to the front.
And has placed upon the altar of the nation's need, her heart.
And no man shall ever suffer in the triumph of the day.
The anguish of the mother of the boy who goes away.

You may hear men's words of glory, you may see their uniforms gleam, but to the mother's service there alone to go and wait.
And I had the little mother, with the tear-stained face and grave, with the smile that was a smile when the bravest of the brave.
And the banner we are proud of, with its red and blue and white, is a lasting tribute only to all mothers' love of right.
